Methodical Tool to the UO Doctoral School Accredited Courses

INCLUSION OF THE UO DOCTORAL SCHOOL ACCREDITED COURSES IN DOCTORAL DEGREE PROGRAMMES AT THE UO

- Inclusion of these courses is not a subject to information obligation towards the National Accreditation Bureau[1] – this would apply only in case a core profile courses change (i.e. also adding courses) would significantly impact on graduate's profile or acquisition of profiling knowledge and skills verified by the Final State Examination. However, this rather applies to Bachelor's and Consecutive Master's degree programmes
- In case of doctoral degree programmes, the NAB methodology on information obligation refers to situations where the conditions for individual study plans would be relaxed, particularly through reducing requirements for study duties, creative activities, and the completion of internships (again with an impact on the graduate's profile or a doctoral examination).

CHANGES OF UO DOCTORAL SCHOOL ACCREDITED COURSES

- Major changes of the UO Doctoral School Accredited Courses, i.e. inclusion or exclusion of course/s, change of a guarantor or lecturer/s, is approved by the Council for Internal Evaluation of the UO.

[1] Under Section 85(c) of Act No. 111/1998 Sb., on Higher Education Institutions and on Amendments to other Acts (the Higher Education Act), a higher education institution is required to inform the National Accreditation Bureau for Higher Education (NAB) of major changes taking place at the institution that have, or may have, an impact on the provision of accredited activities. This obligation is stipulated by NAB Methodological Material no. 203/2022 (RNAU-schvaleno-2017-60-1-Metodika informační povinnost VŠ)
